A WESER AND FISLDS SHOW AT THE OPENING OF TREIR HOUSE.

Smith and Smith's "Hurly Burly" Starts the Senson at the Broadway Music Hall-Plays Produced or Forthcoming in London-What Some of the Actors Are Doing.

The first performance of the new extravaganma, "Hurly Burty," at Weber & Fields's Music Hall last night was long and late. The end of it was not reached until after 12 o'clock, and it was nearly half an hour later before the speechmaking and the presentation of flowers were over. The audience was slarge and tremenenthusiastic. That is always the ease on opening occasions at this peculiarly theatre. whether the entertainment be good, bad, or indifferent. This one, written by Harry B. Smith and Edgar Smith, had all those qualities from the best imaginable to the worst conceivable, and the larger part of it was ratable surely as indifferent. The scheme, in so far as any was discorn-Ible, had been to make a sequel to Cafe." The characters had been brought forward from that piece, and a mixed lot of things had been given them to do. Some of these things will be quickly eliminated and some will be amplified. The result will probably be a successful show. The fault with it ast night was a lack of fresh, original comicality. Most of the devices of fun were echoes and shadows of old things. But there were some excellent songs, sure elements of eventual success. The old members of the company are such strong favorites and the new ones were so warmly welcomed that time for improvement in their new job will be readily orded to them. They were not ready to do their best and the material was not ready for them. The affair will receive further con-

She is at work on a one-act play dealing with an incident of Lord Clive's career in India. "The Termagant," which I. N. Parker wrote for Oiga Nethersole, is said to contain the customary poetic qualities of that author's work, with his usual lack of dramatic force. "As a Man Sows," the latest novelty in London, is in general outline like "John a Dreams." A dissipated and degraded author meets a pure woman who insists that he shall marry her, as his life makes him hesitate to ask her to be his wife. Al Hayman, back from Europe, ucclares that he looked for without finding any plays in use worth bringing to America, except the several that have been secured by other managers. He regarded "The Liars" and "Cyruno de Bergerac," which Mr. Drew and Mr. Mansfield are to try here, as notably strong and fine dramas. Neither Irving nor Bernhardt has suitable material with which to risk a tour, Mr. Hayman believes that our stage is outdoing that of any other country in both manner and matter.

At last spring's gambol of the Lambs the airs of some songs of the day were used as the incidental music for the buriesque of a serious play. The idea has been taken up for "The Turtle." "Mikado" music accompanies Mr. Ferguson's pantomime in the second act, and the reunion of the husoand and wile in the third goes to the refrain of "I Love You in the Same Old Way," which has been familiarised by fat-bodied and thin-voiced tenors in the variety shows.

The Dewey Theatre, on the site of the Volks Garden in East Fourteenth street, will be opened with vaudeville week after next. It has a spacious and ornamental interior. The managers are Timothy D. Suilivan and George J. Krauss, who say that buriesques will te given in good style and that a first-rate grade of appetialists will be employed. Low prices will rule and there will be daily matthess.

A manager of many music halls in England, H. E. Moss, has come here in quest of performers to take home. If his visit spurs some of our laxy vaudeville actors to do something new or results in the exportation of their stale acts we shall be very much obliged to him.

The rivairy among vaudeville resorts in Chicage apparently goes away beyond anything here. For this week one theatre, whose roster is the early and some of our laxy vaudeville actors to do something of another house, whose prices range from 1

OLYMPIA REPORTED SOLD.

The Report Dealed by the Officials of the Insurance Company Which Owns It, Oscar Hammerstein's Olympia, which the New York Life Insurance Company secured under foreclosure proceedings last June, wa disposed of by rumor yesterday, not for the first time, preparatory to reestablishment in all its former giory. The story circulated this time was to the effect that the great music hall and theatre property had been bought by an investor from the South for about $1,100,000, and that this capitalist had leased the place for teh years at "about $100,000 a year" to a syn-dicate of English music hall owners headed by A. H. Chamberlyn of London. Mr. Chamberlyn has been in this city some time trying to secure control of Olympia. He has acnounced that he desires to purchase the property.

has announced that he described the property.

Officials of the New York Life Insurance Company asserted positively yesterday that olympia had not been sold to anybody and that no lease of the property had been signed. Henry J. Hume, the real satate broker through whom the concert hall was said to have been disposed of, would not say whether the report as true of not.

was true or not.

Olympia was built four years ago. The land was said then to have cost $1,000,000 and the building $700.00 more. At the foreolosurs sale last June it was bought in by the insurance company for $950,000.

RETTINA GERARD FOT FREED. Judge Bookstaver Befases to Release Re-

The application for the release of Elizabeth

Ordway, better known as Bettina Gerard, from St. Saviour's Sanitarium at Inwood-on-the-Hudson, in which she has been an inmate for three months, was denied yesterday by Judge Bookstaver of the Supreme Court. She went to the institution voluntarily, with the under standing that she was to be released as soon as aho was restored to health, but when she got there she found a commitment signed by Judge Stover for her incarceration for one year, based was addicted to the use of intoxicants. She had not had a hearing before Judge Stover. In the habeas corpus proceedings for her release the return showed her commitment by Judge Stover, and also that she want there voluntarily. A demurrer to this return was made on the ground that the commitment was defective and invalid, because, among other things, it did not show to what extent she had indulged in intoxicants or the character of the drinks did not show to what extent she had induiged in intoxicants or the character of the drinks that she took.

Judge Bookstaver says: "The relator having reated her case solely upon the demurrer, only questions of law are to be considered by me. The sufficiency of the evidence was nassed upon by the Justice who signed the commitment. The relator by demurring admits the statements in the return that she voluntarily went to the sanitarium. It also appears by the return that she did so with full knowledge of the provisions of the commitment. The writ will therefore be dismissed unless the relator within two days withdraws her demurrer and traverses the return."

An appear will at once be taken to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court from this ruling, in order that there may be a final adjudication upon the question as to whether any person, upon the certificate of two physicians that he is addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, can be deprived of his liberty. If Bettina Gerard went to the institution voluntarily, it is contended that she should be allowed her liberty at any time she saw fit to go, but that her detention, as matter of fact, is under the commitment of Judge Stover. The appeal will be heard next month.

CAME HERE TO WED A NEGRO. Maggie Wood, a Comely Scotch Girl, Detained by Immigration Officials. Maggie Wood, a comely young Scotch wo man, became acquainted with Martin Hamil ton, a coal-black American, while Hamilton was boarding in Glasgow at the home of Maggie's sister, about five months ago. Hamilton was working for an American asphalt company. He is a straight-featured, intelligent negro, without a suspicion of white blood. The young woman grew fond of Hamilton and he fell in love with her. He asked her to marry him and she said she would. He returned to his home at 511 South Eighteenth street, Philadelphia, and kept up a correspondence with Maggie. He sent her money and she sailed two weeks ago for this port on the steamship Mongolian, which arrived yesterday. Commissioner of Immigration Fitchie was surprised to see Hamilton at the Barge Office waiting for his white sweetheart. The young woman declared that she had come here to marry Hamilton, for whom she had thrown over two Scotchmen, and that she intended to do so if there was no law against it. She was told that it was not customary in America for white folks and black folks to marry. She said that she did not see why she should be prevented from marrying the man of her choice. Hamilton said he regarded himself as good as nine white men out of ten, and thought he would be a better husband to Maggie than many white men were to their wives.

Commissioner Fitchie decided to detain Maggie temporarily and let the Special Board of Inquiry investigate the case. Meanwhile a Presbyterian dergyman will talk with the young woman and try to persuade her that she should not marry a negro. turned to his home at 511 South Eighteenth BOY TRAMP SUSPECTED OF MURDER Sixteen-Year-Old Benjamin Band Arrested by the Newark Police.

Benjamin Rand, a 16-year-old tramp, was arrested yesterday in Jersey City by Detective Purcell of Newark on a charge of shooting and seriously wounding Thomas Pander, a negro, who lives at 95 Jackson avenue, Jersey City, On Aug. 26 Pander and another negro were held up by two white tramps on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks between Newark and Waverly. William Brown, a tramp, was ar-rested, and said that the shooting was done by rested, and said that the shooting was done by Rand The police have been looking for Rand ever since, and Detective Purcell arrested him yesterday from a description furnished by Brown.

The prisoner was taken to Police Headquarters and questioned by Chief Murphy. He admitted having shot Pander, but said that he did it because Brown told him to. Brown furnished him with the revolver. A man named George Woods was killed by tramps in the same neighborhood a few days before Pander was shot, but Rand denied knowing anything about that. The prisoner was taken to Newark, and the police expect to connect him with the killing of Woods.

Rand is a Newark boy, known to the police as Dutchy. His parents live at 335 Fifteenth avenue, and his faither said yesterday that the boy acted so badly that he was compelled to put him out of the house six months ago, and had seen him only twice since. The boy was an inmate of the Newark City Home until two years ago.

MILITARY CLUB ATTACHED. It Was Formerly the Seventh Regiment

Veteran Club-Now in Financial Straits. The Sheriff has received an attachment for $1,602 against the Military Club of New York. whose house is at 751 Fifth avenue. The club is the outgrowth of the old Seventh Regiment Veteran Club, which on Jan. 25, 1897, passed resolution changing the name and extending the scope of the organization. Thomas ond became President and Edward G. Arthur Treasurer. The latter sent in his resignation as Treasurer and director last August. He declared that the club was insolvent, that the liabilities outside of the bonded indebtedness were not less than $25,000 and the assets not more than $10,000. On Aug. 4. at the request of President Dimond, he said he paid all the money on hand, amounting to $3,278, to Charles De Hart Brower, which money he understood was to be used to compromise the debts of the club to tradesmen and others, and on Aug. 22 a chattel mortgage was given to the Mutual Bank of New York on the furniture to secure $4,000 loaned by the bank to the club, and the proceeds, he was informed, were turned over to Mr. Brower, as trustee, to pay the debts of the club on which the directors may be liable. The attachment was granted on the ground that the club had disposed of its property. It was served on Mr. Brower. resignation as Treasurer and director last

MUSTN'T CALL HERSELF HIS WIFE. Injunction Against a Washington Woman Using T. M. Fields's Name

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.-A decree was ordered to issue to-day from Judge Cox's court in the case of Thomas M. Fields vs. Wilhelmina A. E. Von Olson, alias Minnie Roberts, in accordance with the petition of plaintiff. Fields, a wellknown attorney, filed a bill several weeks ago asking for an injunction restraining the woman asking for an injunction restraining the woman from using his name or asserting herself to be his wife. He said that she bad in her possession a certificate purporting to show that they had been united in marriage which was a forgery, and he asked that the woman be compelled to bring it into court that it might be destroyed.

Fields said he was married and the actions and assertions of the Roberts-Olson woman caused him much trouble and vexation of apirit. There was no defence made to the suit.

GOLD STRIKE IN ALASKA.

Picking Up Nuggets in Little Minook Creek -Pans Very Blob.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 8.-The steamer Fastnet has arrived direct from St. Michael, bringing news of a very rich strike at Little Minook Creek, Alaska. Neil McLelland of Van-couver says gold is picked up out of the stream in small nuggets and the pans are enormously rich. Bampart City, on this creek, is 700 miles from Dawson, on the Yukon.

The Pastnet, when en routs to St. Michael, was boarded by officers of the British warship Amphiou, who auspected her of piratical intentions owing to the fact that her pilot was Westeriund, the man to whom it was said a large bribe was offered by the Spanish Government to pilot a privateer to seize the St. Michael treasure ships. The British officers did not leave the ship until they satisfied themselves that all was as represented. in small nuggets and the pans are enormously

SEPTEMBER'S HOT WEATHER

NOT SO DEADLY AS AUGUST'S BOT SPELL TWO YEARS AGO.

In Seven Days Then Nearly 700 Person Succumbed There Were 231 Deaths in the Hented Term of 1803 and 313 in 1878-Then Horses, Cats and Dogs Also Died. The week of hot weather ending with Wedneeday's storm was a reminder of the hot wave of two years ago, when the whole country east of the Mississippi was for ten days seething oven. The record of that second week of August has no equal in official statistics. The heat waves of 1872, 1892 and 1898 were destructive to life, but the total number of deaths from the heat in these three hot spells did not equal the number in 1896. Never before had such a wide extent of territory suffered such intense heat and high humidity for so many days. The hot weeks of 1872 and 1892 were preceded by cool weather, but the second week of August, 1896, was preceded by an insufferable week of hot weather. On Tuesday, Aug 4, 1896, the official temperature in New York was 87°, and the humidity 84. The next day was warmer, so the deaths and prostrations began. The temperature and humidity increased each day until on Saturday, Aug 8, the official high-air thermometer registered 89° and the humidity was 79. Fifteen deaths from the heat and nearly a hundred prostrations were reported that day. Many horses dropped in the streets. Then began a terrible week. The news papers of Monday referred to the four pre-eeding days as the hottest period in New York since 1892. All over the East from Mis-York since 1862. All over the East from Mississippi to the Atlantic came reports of deaths and prostrations of men and beasts, of record-breaking temperatures and high humidity. Official temperature records showed that New York, with its 80°, was one of the coolest towns in the hot section, In Jourcean cities east of the Mississippi 107 deaths from the heat were reported. In New York there were 23, in Brooklyn 11, in Philadelphia 21, and in Baltimore 18.

Brooklyn 11, in Philadelphia 21, and in Battamore 18.

But then came Monday's record. The temperature was unchanged, but the town's great office buildings and stone pavements were giving out their stored-up heat. When the day was over the record showed that in the metropolitan district 112 persons had been killed by the heat and 200 others had been prostrated. In five days there had been 700 deaths and prostrations. Work on buildings was stopped. The Public Works Department declared five hours a full working day on the public highway.

deaths and prostrations. Work on buildings was stopped. The Public Works Department declared five hours a full working day on the public highway.

On Tuesday the temperature reached its maximum—04°. But that was only the official temperature. Down in the bot streets of the town for days the mercury had stood above 100° for hours at a time. In the metropolitan district 141 persons were killed and 500 others prostrated by the awful heat. In the then New York city alone 65 deaths and 287 prostrations were reported. Hospitals were overcrowded. Patrol wagons had to be used as ambulances. Hundreds upon hundreds of horses feil in the streets. More than a hundred people died on Tuesday and hundreds more fell dead in the days following. There was an epidemic of prickly heat. Wednesday's record was nearly as bad. The highest official temperature was 92°, and 111 persons died in and around New York. Five hundred more were prostrated. Forty-seven died in New York alone.

Hundreds of tons of free ice were distributed in the east side tenement district by the Health Department on the days following. On Thursday 81 more deaths and 263 more prostrations were reported. The death rate was higher than it had been in New York since the cholera epidemic of 1850. Showers brought relief on Friday. The temperature fell to 77° and only 34 died of heat. Half a dozen died the next day, but the heat wave was over. From the far West came the news of nearly freezing temperatures.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics found that in seven days 1.710 persons had died on Manhattan Island and the annexed district, and of these deaths 651 were due to sunstroke. During the eieven days of heat nearly 700 deaths were due to sunstroke. The death rate was 48.65, more than double the average death rate, and the highest on record. In the tenements there were 1.134 deaths. The death rate was 48.65, more than double the average death rate, and the highest on record. In the tenements there were 1.134 deaths. York Athletic Club's Complaint. NEW ROCHELLE, Sept. 8 .- William F. S. Hart and Jennings S. Cox, in behalf of the New York Athletic Club, appeared before the Board of Health here to-night, and made complaint against John H. Starin, whom they ac cused of maintaining a nuisance at Glen Island. They were backed up by thirty other residents of Travers Island, the summer home of the

New York Athletic Club. Mr. Cox declared that a slaughter house near the " Zoo" and a big scow of garbage kept anchored in the channel made a terrible stench which, added to the sewage emptied into the channel between Travers and Glen islands, caused Travers Island to be uninhabitable.

"Frequently members have come to the island, and intending to remain for weeks," said Mr. Cox. "and after one night would return to New York, refusing to pay even for the one night. We can have no bathing or swimming, and the drinking water is bad."

Ex-Judge John J. Crennan appeared for Mr. Starin and declared that Glen Island was in an ideal sanitary condition. If any place caused a stench, he said, it was Travers Island.

"If Glen Island was in bad sanitary shape," he argued, "Mr. Starin would be the sufferer and not the New York Athletic Club, as he has the entertainment of thousands of persons daily."

KILLED BY AN EXPLODING CARBOY A Flying Fragment Struck Weiss in the Head and Fractured His Skull.

Ferdinand Weiss of 162 East Seventyeighth street, a helper on a delivery wagon belonging to Lighte Bros., soda water manufacturers at 503 East Seventeenth street, was killed yesterday in front of the store at 19 Catharine street by the explosion of a castiron soda water carboy charged with carbonic acid gas. The accident occurred while Weiss acid gas. The accident occurred while Weiss was lowering the carboy, which contained ten gallons of soda water, into the cellar of L. Hunerberg's confectionery store. Otto Rausch, the driver of the delivery wagon, stood in the cellar to receive the carboy.

When the carboy reached the third step of the cellar one of the ropes slipped and allowed the carboy to bump heavily against the stone coping. The next moment there was a terrific explosion, which shook all the houses in the vicinity and drove the tenants into the street panic stricken. A large fragment of the carboy struck Weiss fairly on the head and crushed his skull. Then it bounded across the street and struck the second story fire escape at 20 Catharine street. Weiss was found lying half way down the cellar stairs. The entire left side of his head had been blown off by the force of the explosion, Rausch, the driver, had a miraculous escape. He was knocked off his feet by the explosion, but sustained no injury.

Weiss was lifted from the cellar steps and placed on the sidewalk. He died before the arrival of the ambulance surgeon.

MYSTERY OF A DEAD TINKER,

He Had F. W. Christian's Bank Books an There Are Doubts as to His Identity. New Haven, Conn., Sept 8 .- The authorities here are somewhat in doubt as to the identity of a tinker who died at the almshouse yesterday. He was found ill in a cheap lodg ing house two weeks ago and gave his name as Frederick W. Christian. He had $50 in money and bank books showing deposits in flve Philadelphia savings banks of nearly $2,200. Since the man's death letters have been found in his effects indicating that he has a mother, a brother and a sister living in Cheshire, England. The letters show that he acquired his money through a bequest from his grandfather. What makes the authorities doubt whether the tinker was Christian is that the dead man was at least 60 years old and the bandwriting of the letters from Christian's mother would not indicate that she is an old woman. She writes with a strong, firm hand, without the least sign of feedleness. Then, again, the letters indicate that Christian's brother is a young doctor just starting out in practice. A cable despatch was reserved from Dr. Christian to-day giving orders to bury the body. Before doing so the authorities will have the body photographed so that they may have evidence should there arise a question of identication. The officials do not believe that the tinker's death will reveal a crime, but they consider is their duty to take precautions. found in his effects indicating that he has a Magistrate Olimsted asked the prisoner what regiment he belonged to.

"Infrantry or cavalry?"
"Infrantry." was the reply.
The prisoner said he came from Montauk on a leave of absence saveral days ago.
"Where is your pass?" asked the Magistrate.
I lost it," replied Morrissey promptly.
The policeman who made the arrest stated that the prisoner had said in the station that he came from Fort Sloeum.
"Who is your Colonel?" went on the Magistrate.

"Who is your Colonel?" went on the Magistrate.
"Col. McKenzie."
The Magistrate picked up a copy of the Penal Code, and after looking through it, said that there was no such Colonel in the Army Register.
The Colonel was killed at Santiago." explained the prisoner." and, we got a new one. I've forgotten his name. We had a tough time of it chasing the Spaniards in Santiago. I was in the Sixth Artillery then, and when we charged down the hill into Santiago I was wounded."

The Magistrate asked Morrissey if he be-longed to both the infantry and the artillery. He replied that he had been transferred from the lafantry to the artillery.
"I believe you are a fraud," observed the Magistrate. I have friends who can testify for me.

"Where are they?"
"At Calvary Cemetery," answered the pris-"I believe you are a bogus soldier, and I will fine you $3," announced the Magistrate finally. The prisoner could not pay the fine, so he was taken to jall.

MORE POISONED PACKAGES.

Mrs. Wilkinson Says They Were Handed to Her by a Strange Boy.

The Newark police are investigating a story of an attempt at poisoning which was told first to the Board of Health nearly two weeks ago by Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson, 40 years old, who lives at 502 Warren street and keeps boarders. She took about two pounds of granulated sugar to the office of the Board of Health and said she suspected that it contained poison. She said she smelled something strange about The sugar was analyzed by Chemist Baldwin of the Board of Health, and he found

Baldwin of the Board of Health, and he found that it contained an ounce and a half of arsenic. He made his report on Wednesday and the police sent for Mrs. Wilkinson, who said that a strange boy handed her two packages and said they were sent by the grocer in Orange street. The sugar was wrapped in a newspaper in a manner which showed that it was not put up by a grocer.

When asked if she suspected anybody of an attempt upon her life, she unhesitatingly said: "Yes. I am satisfied that the poisoned sugar was sent to me by a man who used to board with me. He wanted to marry me, and persisted in annoying me for a long while, He was angry because I refused him and said he would get square with me. I have learned since that he has a wife living."

The man she mentioned is a resident of Boseville. He said yesterday that he had heard of Mrs. Wilkinson's accusations for a week or more, and regarded them as a piece of spite on her part. He denied that he had ever proposed marriage to her. He said she was angry because he criticised the manner in which she ran her house and because he quit when he could no longer put up with it.

Magistrate Kramer held him in ball to appear before a magistrate in Sullivan county. Mr. Plate gave the ball and said he would fight the matter, as "it was a clear case of doing up a man from the city."

Mr. Plate and his family stopped at the farmhouse of Frederick Billings at Fallsburg. Mr. Billings presented a bill for $52.25, which Mr. Plate said was exorbitant. The farmer finally reduced it to $29.25 and Mr. Plate gave him a check for that amount. On his return home he found that all he owed the boarding-house keeper was $21.25. He stopped the first check and sent one for the proper amount. Mr. Plate said that he found that the farmer had charged him for eggs and butter he never had, for attention given to his child, and $2 for carrying a case of beer worth $1.25 from the depot.

Caren and Charles Fennington. When Mr. Swin saw one of the birds rise he levelled his gun and fired. The bird fell with its wings broken.

Another bird rose and was brought down. A third was also winged. They attacked their captors. Mr. Swin's coatsleeve was torn by the beak of one bird. Another caught Mr. Caren's arm and tore away a piece of flesh. The birds were finally caught with blankets. Caren's injuries were direased by a physician. On the train to the city the birds escaped from their basket in the baggage car and attacked the trainmen.

HAD JIMMY MICHAEL'S WHEELS.

Three Men Arrested in Long Island City for Stealing Them Yesterday. William Frederick, 21 years old, of 315 East Forty-third street: Louis King, 23 years old, of same address, and Guy Jacobs, 44 years old, a tailor of 300 East 113th street, were arrested in the Long Island station last night on the arrival of a train from Manhattan Beach.
Oscar Babcock of 214 West Fifteenth street, a pacemaker on Jimmy Michael's team, charged them with stealing three bicycles—a triplet and two single wheels, the property of Michael.

Babcock learned that the wheels had been stolen just before the train left Manhattan Beach. In the baggage car he identified the three wheels as the stolen ones, although the nameplates had been removed. The conductor telegraphed to the police at Long Island City, and when the three men claimed the wheels Detective Sarvis arrested them. The prisoners say that two men had promised to meet them in New York and pay them for bringing the wheels from Manhattan Boaen to New York.
The three men were locked up. the arrival of a train from Manhattan Beach.

THREE KILLED BY FIRE

FATAL EXPLOSION IN A STREET LIQUOR STORE. Escape of Those Not Immediately Killed Cut Off by Flame-Bookkeeper Resours a Woman Employee When Hope Seemed

Gone-A Panie Among Other Tenants. A fire in the wholesale liquor warehouse of Max Steiner & Co. at 36 Vesey street caused the loss of three lives and a damage of $10,-000 yesterday afternoon.

The dead are William Witt of 65 Atlanti avenue, Brooklyn; Rudolph Schoendorff, who lived in Jersey City, and Paul La Tour, who is also said to have lived in Jersey City. Witt was foreman of the rectifying branch of the business, which was located in the basement and the sub-cellar of the building. The other victims were workmen under hi charge. The firm occupied the street floor, the base ment, and sub-cellar of the building, which is five stories high.

In the front part of the basement, which, with the sub-cellar, was filled with barrels and vats of liquor, Witt, Schoendorff, and Paul La Tour were busily engaged in filling botthree barrels just before the started. In the rear of the basement Lydia St. Clair, a young woman who lives in West Broadway, was engaged in sticking labels on bottles.

Upstairs in the store at the time were Joseph F. Fitzgerald, the bookkeeper; Milton Steiner, son of the proprietor, a salesman, and Albert E. Turner, a customer.

Suddenly a terrific explosion was heard in the basement. Bottles tumbled from the shelves in the store and the windows crashed from the concussion.

Turner, young Steiner, and the salesms who were in the front of the store, shouted for Fitzgerald to fice for his life. They ran out the front door just as a sheet of flame burs

Fitzgerald to flee for his life. They ran out the front door just as a sheet of flame burst through the flooring and enveloped the entire front of the store.

Fitzgerald, who had heard the warning, started to follow them, but the fire out off his secape in this direction. He ran back to the rear of the store, and, just as he reached the stairway leading to the basement, the St. Clair girl reached the head of the stairs through the clouds of smoke that rolled up after her. She fell exhausted in his arms. He carried her to a window which opens into a narrow areaway. The window is about ten feet from the ground. He placed her so that her body hung over the window sill. He then climbed down a water spout to the ground. Escape then seemed impossible, as there was no outlet from the areaway except through the crockery store of Bawo & Dotten, which fronts on Barclay street, and iron shutters closed the windows of the crockery store. Fitzgerald pounded and kicked on them. The noise was heard by two employees who were just leaving the store. They opened the shutters and passed out a stepladder to Fitzgerald, who placed it against the burning building. He mounted it and carried the girl into the crockery store. She quickly revived and was able to go home.

In the meantime the firemen had arrived. Battalion Chief Kruger ordered a third alarm and enough water was poured into the building to place the fire quickly under con-Battalion Chief Kruger ordered a third alarm and enough water was poured into the building to place the fire quickly under control. When the firemen were able to enter the building Chief Kruger found Witts's body lying on the stairs. He was evidently overcome by the fire just as he had reached the top of the stairs. It was some time before Chief Kruger could thoroughly inspect the basement, and then he found the bodies of Schoendorff and La Tour in a vault under the sidewalk. They appeared to have died of suffocation. The bodies were taken to the Church street station.

tion. The bodies were taken to the Church street station.

The fire did not extend beyond the first floor and did not burn through the walls.

A lithograph establishment upstairs was filled with amoke and the panic among the employees added to the excitement caused by the fire.

Investigation showed that the explosion had demolished only two barrels of liquor while two large tanks in the basement con-taining 2,400 gallons of liquor escaped un-The damage to the building will not exceed $3,000, and $7,000, it is thought, will cover the loss of Max Steiner & Co.

STABBED A 3-YEAR-OLD BOY.

Syrian Girl Attacked Him with a Knife When He Took an Apple from Her Stand. Annie Shalhope, a Syrian girl, who has a fruit stand at 11 Washington street, was haled to the Centre Street Police Court yesterday for stabbing John Planta, the 3-year-old son of Christiana Planta of 15 Washington street, The child's mother, who made the complaint, carried the boy before the Magistrate and pointed out to him the wound in the little felpointed out to him the wound in the little fel-low's thigh. She said that Annie had cut him with a banana knife.

She said that she left her boy playing on her doorstep yesterday while she went around the corner to buy a pitcher of milk. When she returned she found him on the floor of the fruit stand bleeding from a wound in his thigh. She brought witnesses who said they had seen the child toddle into the fruit stand and pick up an apple. Then the Syrian girl rushed at him in a rage, and, seizing a banana knife, stabbed him in the side. The girl seemed to stabled him in the side. The girl seemed to regard the affair as a joke, smiling and wink-ing at the Magistrate while the interpreter struggled with the Planta woman's Polish dia-lect. She was held in $500 bail for trial in the Court of General Sessions. CHEAP TAILORING FROWNED ON.

Merchant Tailors' Association Against Charging Only 50 Cents for Pressing Suits. Many industrious tailors who run shops of their own and work at the board themselves agree to keep in repair clothes purchased from them for one year and press trousers of customers weekly, free, for the same time.

The Merchant Tailors' Association does not like this and it has called a meeting for next Sunday in Macannerchor Hall, Fifty-sixth street and Third avenue, to take action of some kind against these tailors. The association will also take action against tailors who press suits of clothes for 50 cents or less. The tailors' unions are in sympathy with the merchant tailors in this agitation, as they say that tailors who make concessions to customers pull down wages.

$3,500 FOR HIS INJURIES.

James Corkery Gets a Verdict Against the Central Bailroad of New Jersey.

New Brunswice, N. J., Sept. 8.-Justice Van Syckel of the Supreme Court of New Jersey decided yesterday that James Corkery, for many years superintendent of schools at South Amboy, is entitled to $3,500 for injuries re Amboy, is entitled to $3,000 for injuries re-ceived while attempting to board a train of the Central Hailroad of New Jersey at Toms River on Dec. 18. He contended that he steeped on the train while it was standing still and that it started before he could get up the steps. The railroad company declared that he tried to board the train while it was moving. His injuries have unfitted him for teaching. Since the accident he has married a young Philadelphia woman who nursed him in his lil-ness, and is now living in Germantown.

A BUDY IN A LOCKED BOX.

The Skeleton Found by a Claudigger Mass Years After It Was Buried. BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 8 .- A human skeleton in what was once a box about three feet square, was dug up last evening on the banks of the Danvers River by Joseph L. Brown of of the Danvers River by Joseph L. Brown of Bouth Peabody, who was digging for clams. The box was evidently buried many years ago. The rusted hinges and lock were found fastened to bits of wood, but the greater part of the box had decayed. The lock showed that the box was locked after the body was placed in it. The police are at a loss for an explanation of how the body came there. The medical examiner will examine the skeleton to determine whether it is that of a man or a

INFENTOR GRANT DIES SUDDENEY.

Said He Had Just Sold a Patent for Raising John Bodney Grant, 55 years old, of Boston, who had a patent on a plan for raising sunken vessels by means of collapsible canvas air cylinders, died suddenly yesterday in Smith & McNell's Hotel, 199 Washington street, of cerebral apoplexy. Grant came East from Tacoma with his brother Simon about five years ago. They had obtained considerable notice on the Pacific coast by raising the Canadian Pacific steamship Premier, which was sunk off Whidby Island. John settled in Boston and went into partnership with J. Nelson Lewis of that city. When Naval Constructor Hobson came to this city with J. Nelson Lewis of that city. When Naval Constructor Hobson came to this city recently to secure apparatus by means of which the Spanish cruisers sunken outside of Santiago harbor could be raised, Grant and Lowis had several interviews with him in regard to using the collapsible canvas air cylinders. Hobson, it is said, was favorably impressed with Grant's scheme, and carried the plans back to Santiago with him.

Grant, who had been living at Smith & McNell's for the past three weeks, was very sure that the sunken warships could be raised by means of his invention. He was in exuberant spirits on Wednesday night, and told several people around the hotel that his patent had been bought by the United States Government, and that he expected to have $300,000 within three days.

Yesterday afternoon when the chambermaid went to his room she found him lying dead on the bed. Corners' Physician Weston who examined the body said that Grant had died of apoplexy. Sixty cents and a number of pawn tokets were found in his pockets. There was also a lot of letters dealing with his patent. A telegram from Constructor Hobson making an appointment to meet Mr. Lewis in this city was also found. It was learned later that the dead man's wife lived at 79 Sterling street, Boston, and a telegram was sent informing her of her husband's death.

SUGAR REFINING IN HAWAIL

Planters Expect to Send the Finished Prod-HONOLULU, Aug. 31, via San Francisco, Sept. 8.—A wonderful impetus has been given to the sugar industry by annexation. Improvements are planned and under way which will involve an expenditure of millions. Refineries will be built to handle the raw sugar of the various plantations, and it will not be long before the American markets in a refined state. The Nakihu plantation, with a capital of $500,000, proposes to erect a refinery to manu facture the sugar of the smaller planters. A new corporation, known as the Walalua Agri-new corporation, known as the Walaiua Agricultural Company, controlling about 20,000 acres of sugar land, will spend over $3,000,000 on improvements. The company's capital is now $1,500,000, but it will soon be increased by $2,000,000.

Still another plantation is being organized on the island of Lanai which will cultivate about 3,000 acres of sugar land. The company's capital is $500,000. These three companies in the course of two or three years will increase the annual sugar output of the islands by at least 120,000 tons. All the funds for these entorprises have been supplied by the capitalists of Hawaii.

KILLED FOR WITCHCRAFT.

A Young Stickine Indian Falls a Victim to Superstition. VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 8.—The Indian Department and police authorities are now convinced that recently one and perhaps two human sacrifices have been made by the Indians of the Stikine River tribe, in perpetuation of the aboriginal law punishing witchcraft with death. The known victim was a young man of 18, whom the tribal doctor declared to have cast spells upon the chief, and who for this was disembowelled, making no protest himself against the condemnation. Three weeks ago the Rev. Dr. Appleyard of the Anglican Church at Glenora received information that a girl of the same tribe was to be similarly executed for bewitching a boy who had been taken ill. The commissary communicated with the Magistrate at Telegraph Creek, and with police aid secured the girl. Close watch is being kept on the tribe, and at the first sign of returning outlawry every member will be arrested. death. The known victim was a young man

Joseph J. Hennes Is Missing.

The police were notified last night that Joseph J. Hennes, 39 years old, of 48 Grand street, was missing. The informant was G. B. Coleman of the firm of Mills & Coleman, jewellers, at Sixtyfirst street and Madison avenue, by whom Hennes has been employed for twenty-three years. He was the confidential man of the firm. Mr. Coleman said that on Saturday Hennes told him he was going to Staten Island with two customers of the firm on a fishing party, and that he hoped to sell a good bill of goods during the outing. He told his wife that he would be back late on Saturday night. He has not been seen since. Mr. Coleman said Hennes's accounts were all right and that his family relations were pleasant.

Italian Shoots Two Men.

Jose Forlarza and Tony Barron quarrelled last night over a woman at Mulberry and Canal streets Suddenly Forlarza pulled out a pistol and shot Barron in the face. Then he turned and ran, followed by a great crowd. The fugi-tive ran through Mulberry, to Bayard, to Mott, to Pell street, where Alexander Anthony tried to stop him. Forlarza pulled out his pistol again and shot Anthony in the stomach. For-larza was finally captured and locked up in the Elizabeth street station, Anthony will prob-ably die. Barron was not seriously injured.

Wheelmen Collide, and One's Skull Is Frac tured.

While riding a bicycle on the Boulevard in Jersey City last night, Richard Thomas, 20 yars old, of 43 West Twenty-fifth street, lided with another wheelman at Girard avenue, and was thrown heavily to the road. His skull was fractured. He was attended by Dr Lambert, and a friend took him home in a coach. The other wheelman rode away.
